ﷺ Prayer for the Prophet

- To pray for the prophet effectively, remember the sacrifices of our Prophet ﷺ for spreading the message of Islam. If we are Muslims 1500 years after his time and that too in a place far away from Makkah, then it is due to the blessing of Allah and after that due to his sacrifices.

ﷺ Prayer for the Prophet

- Let us take an incident from his life. In spite of being extremely tired after doing Da'wah all day, he went to a tribe late in the evening. I should think that perhaps Islam reached me through that tribe. Along similar lines, I can feel the effect of every sacrifice on me and my life.

ﷺ Prayer for the Prophet

- What can I do now in return for these favors? Invite him for dinner? Send him a gift? Nothing! I can only pray for him.

Prayer for the Prophet pbuh

- What can I do now in return for these favors? Invite him for dinner? Send him a gift? Nothing! I can only pray for him.
- The Prophet ﷺ will receive the rewards from Allah anyway, whether I pray for him or not. It is in fact a great honor for me to pray for him. Furthermore, we receive rewards on praying for him! Everyone who prays for the Prophet ﷺ will receive in return ten rewards from Allah [Muslim].

- Imagine that you are lost in a desert. Your food and supplies are finished and you are getting close to death. Suddenly a man comes to you with food and drink. You enjoy the food, get your energy back and start thanking him. He asks you to help him in distributing the food to other 'dying people.' You just stand there and keep repeating, "May Allah have mercy on you, May Allah bless you." Won't it be a very rude thankless attitude? Extend this example to our relationship with the Prophet ﷺ. If we just pray for the Prophet and don't convey the message to others, will the Prophet ﷺ be happy with us?
